Notes

Is it significant that God, in the garden, called out only for the man and not the man and the woman? Why or why not?

What did I learn about God?

Why do you think the man blamed the woman, and the woman blamed the serpent? What does this tell us about human nature?

What did I learn about myself?

What do you learn about the atonement for sin from observing the man and the woman covering their nakedness with leaves, and God's provision of animal skins to cover their nakedness (John 1:29) / Romans 5:8)?

What will I do with what I just learned?
